Benevolent Work of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Kellogg-Applicant for License May Withdraw Petition-New House for Superintendent W. H. Holmes, Jr. -Cases Assigned for Superior Court-

Dr. and Mrs. John H. Kellogg are the foster perents of forty-two home-less children, where in their home at have been made homeless by the depandency, neglect or death of parents have been made homeless by the depandency, neglect or death of parents have been experienced by the department of the parents have been perents and the parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents and the parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents of the parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents of the parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents of the parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents of the parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer perents are ten acres of woodla have been made homeless by the de-bauchery, neglect or death of parents are ten acres of woodland with a deer have been given a comfortable home, park, and there is a whole menageric hauchery, neglect or death of parents have been given a comfortable home, educated and taught to become good man and women. The foster mother is a sister of William S. Eaton, who reddes in Grove street, Westerly, and the street was new for this home from Chicago with a five man whom they called finite was never old abandoned boy. In an article in the Delineator on the work of Dr. and Mm. Kellogg the writer says:

"The sleeping bundle still wrapped in the Delineator on the work of Dr. and Mm. Kellogg the writer says:

"The sleeping bundle still wrapped in a shawl he laid sortly in a Morrischair in the library of the great house. There the children later found it. A women with her brown hair parted and best over the baby. There was broodward above a white brow cams and ing motherhood in her motion. She stood for a compassionate instant gazing down at the little figure in the little woman little little woman little little was in them the glorified look of the sums. When she and the province of the little figure in the little mother child's darkly-dimmed future has been rewritten in letters of hope.

There are rich men who collect pictures or rare bronzes or costly curios or antiquos. Dr. Kellegg devotes himself to none of these fancies. His one hururious indulgence is children. He pever had any of his own. He adopts them, but not in a legal sense. He himself had to struggle upward through many difficulties to the place he holds in the world. He has paid his own way since at 10 years of age he worked in a throom factory in Battle Creek. Some hardship is good for a boy, he believes. But he thinks some boys set too much of it. A child, he says has a right to a chance."

That is why the doctor has filled his house with children. When his own home was so full it could hold no more the Haskel orphan home, of which he is president, was erected for the overflow, and of these children some ware taken to spend months in his own home. Besides, there have been members of his family there have been height to not the series of the sadding only a favorable entrement to make of them good men and women."

It is reported that one of the applicant to cants for liquor locans for a saloon in Canal street has desided to withdraw his petition because of his inability to secure possession of the property in which he intended to open a saloon. It is said further that this applicant was persuaded in his decision to withdraw his petition because of his inability

The Idle Rich. The Idle Rich.

The idle rich do not infest Chicago. It has no attractions for them. New York has many, but it is in Great Britain that they abound. They are so numerous that Mr. Lloyd George devoted part of a recent speech to them. He said there were hundreds of thousands of men who got the best training, physical and mental that training, physical and mental, that money could provide and then idled their lives away. He deplored the waste of first class material and he derided the argument that the idle rich are useful in that they give employment to hundreds of thousands of proble. What they do he said it to with ment to hundreds of thousands of peo-ple. What they do, he said, is to with-draw men from really useful labor. "The man who is engaged to tie an-other man's tie might otherwise be-come a first class laborer." Think of the retinue of men servants of the American idle rich who might be profitably employed on American farms, raising foodstuffs and cheapen-ing the cost of living.—Chicago Tri-bune.

The Prophet's Usual Praise. It is likely to be as Mr. Walker fear-ed. Freedom from assitation and peref. Freedom from agitation and permanency can be attained only by convincing the people that the hariff rates are "just and reasonable or will be made so," and the Home Market club will save relighted the flames Instead of quenching them. New York, Nov. 25 .- Three more woolen importers were arrested tonight charged with customs frauds against the federal government.

They are Herman Markowits, Charles Stern and Edward I. Cohen, of the firm of H. Markowitz & Co., dealers in cloaks and suits, and the specific charge is that on December 16, 1909, they made a frudulent entry at the customs house on a consignment of woolen goods. All three were held in $5,000 ball each. The case is the third in a series of similar cases which the government has said it considered to be only second in importance to the Sugar frauds.
